

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to the use of alkylphosphocholines in combination with antitumor medicaments for the treatment of benign and malignant oncoses in humans and animals. It is possible in this connection for the alkylphosphocholines to be employed in a combination according to the invention with one or a combination of various approved cytostatics.

Preferred alkylphosphocholines are described by the Formula II.

Formula II